

Level Limits

Demon Idol does not use the extended UA level limits. However, it makes the races and classes available through character tokens. Because of this, the level limits for UA races must be reduced to fit with the PHB limits.

The level limits in your campaign may be adjusted to fit your milieu. Some DMs choose to use the PHB level limits only. Some DMs use the UA limits. Some use their own limits.

If you'd like to introduce UA races via character tokens, but don't want to adopt the UA level limits because they will globally increase the power level of demihumans, here is an example of how the PHB and UA level limits can be extrapolated on:

To determine levels available for new races, the PHB limits were located on the UA 8-9 tables, and then numbers on the same row were checked. In cases where advancement had a jump (e.g. 8-8-10), the numbers were smoothed to suit (e.g. 8-9-10). The only case where a race was given a class that it did not have in the PHB (for classes in the PHB) was the wild elf, who were given druid since they do not have access to cleric.
